Tomorrow Last Day To Pay State Taxes

Tomorrow is the last day on which state taxes can be paid without incurring the penalty of 5 per cent. which is required by law as an impost on those who have failed to settle with the state treasurer by that time. City Treasurer Geoghegan was at his office all day today collecting payments from a number of people who have put off the final payment. He said that he would remain at his office all day tomorrow until half past five morning and said that he expected that the receipts tomorrow will be unusually heavy as large corporations which are assessed large sums pay at the eleventh hour to save the interest on their money.

Girl's Assailant Dies By Own Hand

Autopsy in Huntington, L. I., Tragedy Shows Leitch Shot Himself.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—An autopsy yesterday revealed that John J. Leitch, found dead after it is alleged he had shot and wounded his sweetheart, Miss Rose Sandreiser, committed suicide. He was killed by a 45 caliber bullet from the same revolver used to injure the girl in Huntington, L. I., Monday night.

A shot from the shotgun of Edgar Scudder, who was at first believed to have killed Leitch, inflicted superficial wounds. It is believed that Leitch was already dead in the seat of his automobile when Scudder fired. Scudder, who was taken into custody Monday night as the slayer of Leitch, was paroled yesterday in the custody of Leitch's father, pending the inquest, which is to take place Saturday morning in the Huntington Town Hall.

The autopsy which was performed by Coroner E. S. Moore of Bay Shore, and Dr. W. C. Pendell, Scudder's physician, revealed that Leitch's body was pierced by a bullet which had passed through the head.

The shooting was prompted by a visit of Leitch, who Monday night arrived from his home in Northport in his automobile to the Scudder home on Lounsbury street, Huntington. Miss Sandreiser admitted him to the house. The couple were in the parlor about one hour when a shot startled the Scudders.

Scudder heard the girl scream and, taking his shotgun, rushed to the front of the house, where he said he saw Miss Sandreiser lying on the floor. Leitch, Scudder believed, was threatening to shoot Mrs. Scudder. The men ran into the parlor and Leitch, who appeared to collapse from a shot fired at his heart. Believing he had killed the man, Scudder then went to the house next door and telephoned the police. He was later taken to the office of Deputy Sheriff Wenzel for questioning, but was not arrested.

Leitch and Miss Sandreiser were engaged to be married, but on Sunday quarreled because the girl said her fiancé had "insulted" her. He agreed to call at the house Monday night for the return of his engagement ring.

Much At Stake In Virginia Contest

Va. Carolina Game May Determine Southern Championship—Teams Indulge in Light Workouts.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) CHARLOTTEVILLE, Nov. 30.—The eyes of Southern football fans are turned today on Charlottesville, the historic battleground of the "Old Dominion" boys and the "Tar Heels" from North Carolina, who are settling their old rivalry in a contest which gives promise of a battle to the death. There is more at stake between the two eleven than a football game. The Southern Championship may hinge on the result for should Virginia defeat North Carolina, the Tar Heels would be out of the running unless the cadets of the A. M. I. do the unexpected and defeat V. P. I. at Roanoke.

Both teams wound up their training yesterday with light workouts and the coaches were satisfied with the condition of the men. Both estimates were confident as they are ready to enter the fray and a sun on light seemed sure.

Ben Powell's Time Bomb About Ready To Make Big Noise

B. R. Powell, of Gretna, active in Republican politics in that town was heard from today with reference to a news story published this morning that he recently figured in what appears to be an inter-party row. Mr. Powell indicated that he has about reached the end of his patience over treatment accorded him by some of his political conferees and he is about to explode the "sensational bomb" to which he made reference not long ago after an unsatisfactory interview with Congressman Bascom Slemp.

"I've got the dope," he said over the telephone today, "and they know that I've got it. It's the kind of stuff that the politicians don't want to see in the papers and I'm going to turn it loose in a few days. When pressed for the nature of his purported forthcoming expose Mr. Powell refused to be drawn out saying "I am not going to turn it loose until I get ready." He mentioned the name of one or two people who, he asserted, would be discomfited by what he had to reveal.

There has been speculation of recent weeks as to the nature of the information which Mr. Powell says he holds. It is reliably understood to be based upon methods resorted to in the distribution of federal patronage in the fifth district at the hands of Republican leaders.

Heavy Shrinkage In State Income Tax Revenue

(By Horace A. Hawkins.) RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 29.—There are 600 men employed by the federal revenue service who are being schooled in connection with the problem of income taxes and matters affecting the revenues of the government. This year there has been an enormous shrinkage in the income tax receipts of all kinds, the State tax being as heavily as the federal government. Apparently there has been a large volume of business and the one hundred of people it is believed, who have received nearly as much as during the period of the year 1921. The shrinkage is due to the fact that the State tax is being collected by the State and the federal government is being collected by the State and the federal government.

Coal Shortage May Result In Extending Shipping Season

(By The Associated Press.)
DULUTH, Minn., Nov. 30.—Necessity for prolonging the Great Lakes shipping season beyond the date set for the formal close of navigation because of the shortage of coal receipts here for the northwest supply and the subsequent inducements to be offered, is going to cause ship owners to speculate heavily by operating their boats after insurance has expired, declare local vesselmen.

December 10 is the date set for the formal close of navigation and on that date insurance on the vessels automatically expires, but short extensions are made by the insurance companies on application. Beyond that extension, operation of the craft is the owner's risk.

The opinion was promptly expressed by Chief Justice Taft vigorously nodding his head in the affirmative when his sentiment was expressed and announced that the request for Wheeler's intervention was refused.

TIERNAN WEDS SECOND TIME

Mrs. Blanche Brimmer, above, recently became the bride of John P. Tiernan (lower right), former Notre Dame law professor, who was the star witness for his wife, Augusta Tiernan (lower left), in a suit charging another man with being the father of her child. However, the judge who had granted the Tiernan divorce set the decree aside upon hearing of the second marriage, and Tiernan returned to his first wife.

LOVE LETTERS OF THE SECOND MRS. TIERNAN

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—The world must want to know how a corn-fed beauty in an Iowa village, with no tools but the stub of a lead pencil, managed by mail to charm a college professor into making a fool of himself.

The letters of Mrs. Blanche Hawn Rash Brimmer to Prof. John P. Tiernan, who came from Notre Dame to Chicago and married her, only to flee his bargain within the rounds of the clock, illuminates the subject distinctly.

Not the facing his first wife gave him at the station in South Bend, when he returned to her, nor the putting with which she crowned it, held half the emotions nor a fraction of the tenderness expressed by Blanche in her long-distance wooing. The professor was won by a line of letters that, if bound, would look the size of Webster's unabridged. She wrote two or three a day, and all were long. Some ran into thousands of words.

Strong For Love.
Ah, those words! How she could hang them together! Religion and rough stuff, advice to stick by his family and red hot allurements to quit them, poured upon the poor pedagogue in an appalling torrent.

Still, she was a woman of 32 who wouldn't write out "hell." She used a dash. In the same letter, however, she would insist that she was the distant professor's chattel to come and get "body and soul."

She told him she had seen him once, three years ago, from a car window that he had been pointed out to her as "the famous Professor Tiernan" and that from that time she had loved him superlatively. Never in the correspondence did she explain why she hadn't sped the rolling honey.

On November 5, after having received a reply from the professor, she addressed him: "Dear Man o' Mine."

"I am a very passionate person," she informed him.

But in the next paragraph she got down to cold business, thus: "Young man, you are thinking wholly of yourself. Suppose you succeed in winning my love? And then something happens and you go back to your life? What do you think of that? I'd not be selfish. For if you found you could live with her, I'd wish you joy and happiness. But just the same I'd suffer."

Judge's might be found who would say it wasn't quite fair for Blanche to write her next letter: "I am five feet five inches tall, have dark wavy hair, very blue eyes and a medium complexion. I weigh 118 pounds, have small feet and hands. I guess that is all, only I love golf, tennis, etc. Best of all I care for a wonderful man in the east that is worth risking character for."

The professor answered that letter. In return he was called "Dear Man o' My Dreams," but was told she would be glad if he became reconciled with his wife and "again embarked on the sea of matrimony, even if it's in a patched canoe."

Her Dream Lover.
Explaining why she chose at that moment to send him as a dream lover, she wrote:

"I'd be afraid to love you as a reality. For then I'd be as all true women are. I'd begin to long for you and your arms to be caressed and to

Polynesians Said To Be Members Of The Aryan Race

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 30.—That the Polynesian race originally sprang from an Aryan people is the conclusion of Alfred Newman, a member of the Polynesian Society of New Zealand, which has devoted much time for many years to the study of the origin of the race, study to the origin of the race, study to the origin of the race, study to the origin of the race.

In his book, "Who Are the Maori?" Newman traces the origin of the race to an Aryan people who crossed from the Punjab to the plains of the Ganges between 2,000 B. C. and 1,500 B. C., where they conquered and afterward amalgamated with a Mongolian race inhabiting that region.

The ruling caste were, however, proud of their Aryan blood and endeavored to preserve the Aryan ascendancy, according to Newman. The result of this fusion was a mixed race with dominant Aryan characteristics. About 1,000 B. C. the race invaded Burma, slowly fought its way down the peninsula and about 500 B. C. crossed into Java which they found inhabited.

"When the Maori left Borneo and New Guinea they did not do so from curiosity or love of adventure or because they were skilled navigators," wrote Mr. Newman. "They left in consequence of great war. The emigrants were nearly always the beaten people and they left island after island for the same reason."

He said he believed the emigrants left the Malay Archipelago between 2,000 B. C. and 300 A. D., coming first to Samoa, and then to other islands of the South Pacific. It is from such a source, he said that the most daring navigators and hardy adventurers of the world has ever seen have sprung.

Good Morning Judge!

The police docket this morning was a very brief one, court being in session but a few minutes. With the usual crowd of spectators standing around to listen to the fate of alleged criminals, absent this morning, there was a real holiday spirit apparent. Activities were quiet with the police and those who happened to be in the courthouse were standing around in small groups holding conversations about them about work, some about amusing incidents which have happened in their line of duties and others telling jokes.

In the courtroom, fines of $20 and costs were imposed on Otis Shelhorse and Thomas Thomas for speeding. Henry Martin was fined $5 and costs for gambling.

William Tarpley, charged with reckless driving was not present. There was also one drunk case disposed of with the usual $11 and costs fine imposed.

Fire Lines Run Eighteen Miles

WINCHESTER, Va., Nov. 29.—Forest fires, which have been raging for more than a week on both eastern and western slopes of Great North Mountain in the western section of Frederick county, are destroying valuable timber and menacing farm property, were gotten under control on Sunday and have since been put out by snow and rain, according to Newton K. Larriek, one of the leaders of relay gangs, who arrived here last night from the scene of the fire.

Mr. Larriek said the mountain was burned on both sides for a distance of 18 miles. The men battling with the flames were making considerable headway, he said when last week's cold west wind increased so in velocity that for more than 60 hours the wind blew like a hurricane, carrying the flames down the eastern mountain side and driving volunteers away.

Flood's Body Will Rest in a Granite Mausoleum

Confesses Robbing Bank By New Trick

Dyer Bill Not To Pass, Claim

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30.—Opponents of the Dyer anti-lynching bill are convinced that it will not pass the Senate, which forecasts its failure in the present Congress. In the next Congress its chances will be remote. Recognition of the importance of affirmative action now, colored leaders and politicians are making every effort to bring pressure to bear upon Republican senators. They are in evidence about the Capitol dome. In the new papers "big game" is taken for the publication of propaganda written for the consumption of members.

Who pages have appeared, a prima facie case is made out as to the failure to reach a vote. They have no compensations in filibustering to beat the particularly obnoxious measure, and they believe that the more respectable element of the Republican party feel about it as they do.

It was all very well from a Republican viewpoint, to stall the bill through the House in advance of the election and for senators in closely contested States where the negro voter is a factor to announce their favorable inclination, but the election is over. Moreover, the Republicans are not convinced that the negro vote did much to stem the Democratic tide.

So no tears are likely to be shed if, when the bill dies in the upper house.

But in 1924 the failure of the Republicans to make good promises relative to the anti-lynching measure, for which the colored people entertain high hopes, may rise up to plague the party.

Pioneer Wants Flag Carved on Tombstone

DURAND, Ill., Nov. 29.—That the American flag be carved on a granite slab over his grave is one of the requests made in the will of Matt Trask, Civil War veteran, scout and plainsman of the early days, whose funeral was held here.

Matt, son of Elias Trask, was born Sept. 22, 1847, near the village of Durand, and at 20 enlisted in the 11th Illinois Infantry. On the expiration of the enlistment he was promoted in the 11th Illinois Volunteer Infantry, serving until the close of the war. As a boy he had attended the famous debate between Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas at Freeport. He walked 20 miles to hear the speeches.

After his discharge from the army he went West, where he was engaged in prospecting for gold in California, Washington and other Pacific States. He also served as a scout in the more remote regions of those States. Returning to Durand he became interested in the breeding and training of race horses. With his flowing hair and broad brimmed hat he was a familiar figure at race tracks throughout the country for many years.

Lockhart, attorney for Hastings, said that his client had been under great mental stress recently and had been under examination by Dr. Smith W. Jelliffe, alienist and insanity expert. Whether or not the appointment of a lunacy commission would be asked depended on the conclusion reached by Dr. Jelliffe, Lockhart said.

Branch Manager of Corn Exchange Admits Stealing $51,912 in Few Years.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Max W. Hensel, 32 years old, for two years manager of the Corn Branch of the Corn Exchange Bank, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny following a confession he made to Walter E. Frew, President of the bank, and Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings that he had stolen from the institution $51,912.48 during a period of several years. He was arraigned before Judge Keelsky in General Sessions and released in $5,000 bail, which he furnished. Pleading was adjourned for one week.

Mr. Frew said that Hensel's pecuniary gains were covered by bond. Hensel, who received about $6,000 a year in salary and had received a large part of the extent of $25,000, turning over his salary to a life insurance, his home in Longmont, valued at $17,000 and jewels belonging to Mrs. Hensel. Hensel did not use the money for speculation, according to Leslie Lockhart, 31 Chambers St., his attorney, but spent the money on his home and wife.

Hensel's confession followed his transfer to another branch, the District Attorney said. Until the time he voluntarily confessed securities through Hensel's branch, he would appropriate it, and debit the amount against a depositor who had an inactive account, making out a charge ticket.

In order to conceal the debit against the customer on the bank's books, Hensel said that he saw to it that the deposit book of the customer did not show any of the debits. By this expedient, it was explained at the District Attorney's office, it was possible to deceive even the bank examiners, who found the amount of money in the bank tallied with what the books of the bank showed.

Hastings quoted Hensel as saying that he would plead guilty and "take his medicine." He asked to be admitted to bail in order that he might assist in straightening out the bank's affairs. Mr. Hastings said, according to the confession, Hensel first resorted to his pocket to cover up a mistake for which he had previously been censured by his superiors. After that he found it was so easy to deceive the bank that he continued the practice, Mr. Hastings said.

Lockhart, attorney for Hastings, said that his client had been under great mental stress recently and had been under examination by Dr. Smith W. Jelliffe, alienist and insanity expert. Whether or not the appointment of a lunacy commission would be asked depended on the conclusion reached by Dr. Jelliffe, Lockhart said.

TRINKLE WILL GET EXPRESSION FROM MEMBERS

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 29.—Governor E. Lee Trinkle announced tonight that he will address letters to all members of the general assembly asking for an expression of their views relative to the calling of a special session of the legislature to consider the enactment of the emergency legislation to provide for the state highway system for the next year.

POLITICS ARE ON IN JAPAN

TOKIO, Nov. 29.—October found Viscount Takahashi, former premier and president of the Diet—and Viscount Kato, president of the Ken-seikai, the two leading parties, campaigning in the west, preparatory to the meeting of the Diet. The Kishishin Club, successor to the dissolved Kokuminto, is busy formulating a program.

Unless Premier Kato decides to give up the premiership when the decisions of the Washington treaties have been carried out, which is believed from some quarters, the coming session of the Diet is of more importance than the political speeches.

The Diet usually meets on December 29, but after appointing chairmen of committees adjourns until January 20, when the real business of the session is taken up. Universal suffrage probably will come up again, despite the fact that the government has appointed a committee to consider the question. Dr. Mizuno, Minister of Home Affairs, is at its head. Advocates of universal suffrage wanted an independent committee or adoption of the principle by the cabinet itself.

Why We Should Be Grateful

BY EX-SENATOR COLE

Having lived in this land dedicated to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for more than 100 years, I am perhaps entitled to say what I believe the nation has to be grateful for at this Thanksgiving season, namely: That we weathered the most disastrous of all wars with so little real distress, and that we are not under the appalling shadow which hangs over so many of the earth's less fortunate peoples.

That we have come again into an era of general prosperity and stability out of threatened chaos. That the principles upon which the United States was founded—a government by the majority, built upon the rights with which all human beings are endowed—have not been shaken by recent internal and external events.

TO RECONDITION TWO STEAMERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board announced that bids would be asked for the reconditioning of the steamships America and President Grant in the trans-Atlantic run of the United States Line, managing agents for the board. Further he said, a board of experts will make a survey of the two vessels as to whether they should be reconditioned.

The America is the former German liner of the same name and the President Grant is one of the new shipping board passenger liners. Both carry first, second and third class passengers, but when reconditioned will be converted into one cabin passenger carriers and will be returned to their present service.

Next spring, Mr. Lasker said, the United States Lines will have in operation in the trans-Atlantic service for the board, the Leviathan, President Grant, President Harding, America, and George Washington.

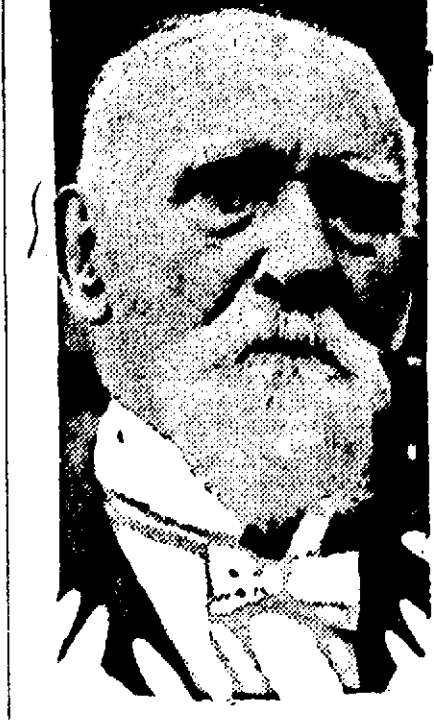

Mr. Lasker said he wanted to set at rest rumors that the board intended taking any ships away from the United States Lines, that until the board charters or sells the ships they will remain under the present management.

Cornelius Cole, who celebrated his one-hundredth birthday recently, was a distinguished and an active figure in the public life of the United States for 60 years.

He represented California in the lower House of Congress from 1863 to 1865 and in the Senate from 1867 to 1873. He was a law associate of William H. Seward, President Lincoln's secretary of state, and a close friend of Lincoln himself.

From his long political observation he sets down here for The Bee, the things for which he thinks the country has to be especially grateful on Thanksgiving Day, 1922.

franchise for sound, constructive policies. That this young and sometimes bewildered nation is developing such sound common sense, in the main, as it approaches its age of maturity, in both domestic and foreign relationships. That, summing it all up, perhaps the fathers of the country would not need to be alarmed or ashamed if they could see how nearly we of today have followed their vision in realizing their splendid ideals of a free government.

FOREST FIRE IN N. C. COVERED 30 SQUARE MILES

FAVETTEVILLE, N. C., Nov. 29.—A forest fire which originated between Pineview and the Sprunt farm in Harriet county November 22, burned over an area of approximately thirty square miles before it was brought under control Thursday night of last week, according to Fire Warden R. W. Christian, of Cumberland county, who led a force of thirty men in checking the blaze.

Mr. Christian said today the fire was started by burning of fields in the neighborhood. Fanned by a stiff north wind, the blaze raced south at the rate of about four miles an hour and was most difficult to handle, he said.

About 20 per cent. of the burned territory was covered by big timber and the remainder was young growth and underbrush. He could not give

SHERIFF WILL CONSIDER POOR

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 29.—City Sheriff Harry Dahke announced today that during the holiday season or until January five he will not be a party to ejecting any widows or orphans from their homes because of inability to pay rent; neither will he aid in garnishing the wages of workmen, or in making any forced collections. Further he declared that during the holidays he will not receive replevin, ejectment or garnishee suits.

The announcement followed a plea made by Judge W. Meredith Yeatman of Municipal Court to money lenders and those selling goods on the installment plan to show consideration for the poor especially during the Christmas season.

COURTS URGED TO PUSH LIQUOR CASES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The attention of federal authorities throughout the country has been called to the necessity of cooperating closely with prohibition agencies with a view to curbing the extended law violations. Federal attorneys have been instructed to push all pending liquor cases and to argue for the imposition of the heaviest penalties on conviction. Their attention was called to reports that some cereal beverage manufacturers are making illegal drinks.

TWO ARE KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

GREENSBORO, N. C., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Mabel Gould, a stenographer and Dr. John Moran, a dentist, were killed here today when a Southern Railway passenger train struck an automobile in which they were riding at a grade crossing here. They were going to lunch at the time. Mrs. Moran, who is survived by an eleven-year-old, came here from Somerset this year.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1922.

DAY OF JOY.

What are you thankful for this Thanksgiving Day? Wait a minute. It is falling, characteristic of Americans, to attempt to express nearly everything in terms of money. On at least, in terms of money.

Most of us have the notion that Thanksgiving Day is a national festival was born in much the same spirit—a gratitude for good fortune. To some extent, it was. The Pilgrim Fathers were thankful for crops that ensured them against starvation in the barren winter that lay ahead. But unquestionably their joy was not confined to food.

They thanked the Almighty for liberty in government, freedom of worship and the simple joys of happy homes.

On this Thanksgiving Day, let us not be thankful merely in proportion to our prosperity, though times have greatly improved in the past year.

Let us remember and be thankful for these more important elements of life—our families, our health, our friends.

Many a home that is trying to make a small chicken serve as Thanksgiving food for a half dozen hungry mouths has more of genuine love and happiness to be thankful for than some of the places where butlers serve giant turkeys on silver platters.

And if we are away from home, forced to dine at a public eating place among strangers, let us be thankful for the love of far-away home folk and friends.

Such is the real Thanksgiving spirit.

THE ART OF MAKING AN IMPRESSION.

What impression do you make on other people—particularly when you are introduced to strangers? And what is your attitude or "front" in trying to get something you want?

Here's a tip along that line, from Clemenceau. He pauses in a speech and says: "I will tell you that I am rather timid—slightly."

Judging from the arguments he starts, "slightly" is right.

But powerfully effective on an audience is Clemenceau's confidential admission that he feels a trifle timid in this age of "rush-em-off-their-feet" aggressiveness, timidity and shyness are rare qualities.

As in Clemenceau's case, they appeal as a craving for affection, for attention, for respect.

While shyness is rare among the bulk of people, it is becoming quite the fashion among the shrewd and cunning to affect an air of modesty and meekness.

Once the speaker forcefully thumped his fist on the table and declared: "I tell you so-and-so and I know what I'm talking about."

The same speaker now says, in effect: "My great reputation for wisdom probably is an over-estimate of my humbleness. But from all I can learn after patient and thorough investigation, it seems to me, etc., etc."

The psychology of this is that it appeals to reason—and to the hearer's vanity by depicting him into the belief that he is asked to pass judgment.

The "know-it-all" attitude backed by "rush-em-off-their-feet" tactics breeds resentment and even disdain.

Salesmen, first to sense a change in popular psychology, are shifting from aggressiveness to an olive-branching "approach" to what they offer.

In courting a woman, a man makes faster progress by gentleness, sympathy and the shrinking that attracts love, he begins moaning to his lady-love that he has had a sad past, more trouble than his share, and that no one seems to understand and sympathize with him.

You cannot get sympathy by wailing an ax. But you can get it by pointing mournfully to the ax and admitting that you don't know it. Lincoln said something about mosquitoes catching more flies than vinegar. He should have added, "than a fly-swatter."

Scoop's Column

DRAKES BRANCH, Nov. 30.—(Gravestone Wireless).—Thanksgiving Day, he it well-known, is strictly an American holiday. No other nation in the world celebrates it. Our sturdy ancestors, the Pilgrim Fathers, inaugurated it as an occasion for thanking Providence and success in the new land of the brave (meaning Indian originally). A hardy and God-fearing people were the pioneers who subdued the virgin forests and the savage Redskins. They went to meeting with a Bible in one hand and a flint-rock in the other. Not for their glory did our forefathers fight. Their efforts were made to lay the foundation upon which has been built the greatest nation in the world.

Among the many virtues that the American people may be thankful for is a keen sense of humor. Artemus Ward, Mark Twain, and Bill Nye, contributed to the joy of living in their day by wit and humor. They were pioneers in the realm of merriment. Today we have the musical comedy and the minstrel show and the funny side of the newspaper and screen.

Good humor is essential to a happy Thanksgiving and you will find some here below, befitting the occasion—sparks from the joy-reel. "Topics of the Day" Films:

A lot of Things, says Ed. Walton.

TOM SIMS SAYS

Exactly as was predicted yesterday, today is Thanksgiving.
And a serious shortage of things to be thankful for is reported.
This shortage, however, reminds us of the auto driver.

The auto driver was thankful because telephone poles only hit his car in self-defense.
So here is a list of things we are thankful for this Thanksgiving.

And, if you have a thanks shortage, you may be thankful with us.
We are thankful because women don't chew tobacco.

Because everybody can't sing.
Because Sunday always comes on time.
Because America is not in China.
Because night only comes once a day.

Because all girls are not red-headed.
Because we can't play golf.
Because all girls are not blondes.
Because we can't play a saxophone.
Because all girls are not brunettes.
Because we can't play auction bridge.

Because autos don't eat oats.
Because phonographs run down.
Because we don't like garlic.
Because trains never run sideways.
Because we don't like rhubarb pie.
Because bathtubs empty themselves.

Because we don't eat tapioca pudding.
Because Christmas is a month away.
Because water never makes you sick.
So, after all, you see how easy it is to be thankful.

If you are not thankful because something is, you can always be thankful because something isn't.
And this reminds us of the man who needed shoes and was thankful because he was not a centipede.

And the bald man who was thankful he never needed a haircut.
With reminds us of the man who was broke and was thankful because he had indigestion.

And the one with the wart on his finger.
And the man thankful because he had a tooth to ache.
But above all comes the man who was thankful just because he had sense enough to be thankful.

And that, that, thank goodness.
If you find something and don't don't know what it is, it may be coal.

AFTER securing his passage on a Zeppelin, Barrett went to the office of his personal lawyer.

"Allison," he told the kind but grave old senior partner, "I'll be gone long enough to establish grounds for suit for divorce by my wife. Desperation, of course, I want you to do everything legitimate to facilitate the action."

The old man rose hastily, agitated, profoundly troubled.

"Why, John Barrett, I didn't know—never dreamed—have you thought this over—have you considered—"

Everything. Meanwhile see that my family has everything of mine but the bare necessities of my travel abroad. Get together with Rex Warren, my wife's lawyer. Have things go through with as little distress to Anita as possible.

Allison dealt with his fingers. "Just a minute, Barrett. Aren't you lacking in frankness a little. I'm an old man. I can talk to you plainly. What am I to say to those who mention—Myra Dean? Now, Barrett, you know she is going tomorrow too—in the papers. Big newspaper assignment. Far east or somewhere."

"That will not answer the question," Allison said. "People don't know in such cases I couldn't take your case on any such ground as desertion when it's known that you and Miss Dean left for Europe the same day. Why, your wife won't need to stir out of the state to bring suit."

Barrett leaped to his feet. "Miss Dean sails on the Cedric for the Balkan states. I am booked on the Zealand for Holland."

Old Allison shrugged a thin shoulder. "Theoretically that ought to make a difference."

"You mean you don't believe me?"

A PLEA FOR THE PRODIGAL GIRL
(Published by request)
"I have read of the death of the martyrs:
The story of Peter and Paul.
I respect and honor them all;
And also old Thomas and Stephen.
Honest and faithful men.
And I've read the sweet story of Jesus.
And expect to read it again.
I've read of the Good Samaritan.
Of charity's lesson begun.
And my heart goes out in great pity
To the wayward prodigal son.

"All are so glad to welcome him.
So quick to forget and forgive.
It makes no difference what he has done.
If he only comes back to live:
They have always prayed for the prodigal.
Since ever the world began.
The joy, the glory, forgiveness.
Of the returning, wayward son.
But poets seem to forget to write
Of the saddest thing in the world—
They are not so eager to welcome
The poor little prodigal girl.

"Just why she has turned out badly—
She happened to find the 'right one.'
Who had the sick tongue of a Judas—
And that was your prodigal son.
Though the boy is upheld and forgiven.
It is common all over the world.
That you scornfully point out for gossip
The poor little prodigal girl.

There is nothing so truly pathetic
As the life of the maidens who fall.
And if you search down to the bottom
You will find man the cause of it all.

"But he is led back in society
And nursed with the tenderest care.
Held up to the world as a hero.
And mentioned in fervent prayer.
While she is cast out from her loved ones
Out in the hard, cruel world.
And everyone points out and scorns
The poor little prodigal girl."

THE LOVE BIRD HAS FLOWN

By Zoe Beckley

MYRA HAD DELIBERATELY RUN AWAY FROM HIM.

"I mean that others will not."
"Then they will have to make the best of their doubts. Goodbye!"

Barrett had come so close to changing his mind under Allison's terse arguments that he rushed to Myra for the support it would give him merely to see her for a temporary farewell.

He found her little house locked, boarded up, not a soul about. She had deliberately run away from him. (To Be Continued.)

RHINELAND IS TROUBLED OVER RUMORS HEARD

COLOGNE, Nov. 29.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Rhineland has become noticeably perturbed over the rumors from Paris that the French intend taking reprisals, such an extension of the occupation, and it is feared here that whether the plan actually materializes or not, reports will prove added fuel to the flame of separation which recently has been flaring up more actively.

While alarmed at the material sequences which might follow a carrying out of the proposed French project, the press declared it would only unite more than ever the real loyalty of the population to Germany.

"When President Wilson landed in Europe at Christmas time 1918 to have his fostered policy become a reality," says the "Cologne Gazette," "he said in his first speech that the fate of Alsace Lorraine had not permitted him to meet easily since his youth. We fear the fate which is now said to be under preparation for the Rhineland will never permit Europe to sleep in the future."

BEN BURCHFIELD TRIAL DELAYED
BRISTOL, Va., Tenn., Nov. 29.—Ben Burchfield, charged with the slaying of five persons here Sunday, likely will not be tried until the January term of the Sullivan County Circuit Court, at Blountville, Tenn., according to an announcement made tonight by Chief of Police D. L. Heaberlin.

Chief Heaberlin said he knew of no plan for an special grand jury in the case. He added that proceedings in the case was secured today but declined to say what constituted this evidence.

"THAT'S OUR STILL CHILD TELLS COURT: IRATE PARENT HELD
BAY CITY, Mich., Nov. 29.—"Oh, mamma, there's our still now, piped the two-year-old son of Charles T. Harrison in police court here, during Harrison's examination on a charge of prohibition violation.

Harrison frowned at the child's identification of the still, but the court's patience thinned with laughter until the gavel restored order. Harrison was held for trial.

THE THING ON THE HEARTH

"THE first confirmatory evidence of the thing, Excellency, was the print of a woman's bare foot."

He was an immense creature. He sat in an upright chair that seemed to have been provided especially for him. The great bulk of him flowed out and filled the chair. It did not seem to be fat that enveloped him. It seemed rather to be some soft, tough fiber, like the pudgy mass making up the body of a deep-sea thing. One got an impression of strength.

The country was before the open window; the clusters of cultivated shrub on the sweep of velvet lawn extending to the great wall that inclosed the place, then the bend of the river and beyond, the distant mountains, blue and mysterious, blending indistinguishably into the sky. A soft sun, clouded with the haze of autumn, shone over it.

"You know how the faint moisture in the bare foot will make an impression."

He paused as though there was some compelling force in the reflection. It was impossible to say, with accuracy, to what race the man belonged. He came from some queer blend of Eastern people. His body and the cast of his features were Mongolian. But one got always, before him, a feeling of the hot East lying low down against the stagnant Suez. One felt that he had risen slowly into our world of hard air and sun out of the vast sweltering coze of it.

He spoke English with a certain care in the selection of the words, but with ease.

It is necessary to try to understand this, because it explains the conception everybody got of the creature, when they saw him in charge of Rodman. I am using precisely the descriptive words; he was exclusively in charge of Rodman, as a firm in an Arabian tale might have been in charge of a king's son.

The creature was servile—with almost a groveling servility. But one felt that this servility resulted from something potent and secret. One looked to see Rodman take Solomon's ring out of his waistcoat pocket.

I suppose there is no longer any doubt about the fact that Rodman was one of those gigantic human intelligences who sometimes appear in the world; and by their immense conceptions dwarf all human knowledge—a sort of mental monster that we feel nature has no right to produce. Lord Rayless Truxley said that Rodman was four generations in advance of the time, and Lord Rayless Truxley was, beyond question, the greatest authority on synthetic chemistry in the world.

Rodman was rich and, everybody supposed, indolent; no one ever thought very much about him until he published his brochure on the scientific manufacture of precious stones. Then instantly everybody with an pretension to a knowledge of synthetic chemistry turned to ward him.

The brochure startled the world. It proceeded to adapt the luster and beauty of jewels to commercial uses. We were being content with crude imitation colors in our commercial glass, when we could quite as easily have the actual structure and the actual luster of the jewel. It was patently hunting over the earth, and in its bowels, for a few crystals and prettily-colored stones which we hoarded and treasured, when in a manufacturing laboratory we could easily produce them, more perfect than nature, and in unlimited quantity.

Now, if you want to understand what I am printing here about Rodman, you must think about this thing as a scientific possibility and consider it. Suppose we should suddenly discover that pure gold could be produced by treating common yellow clay with sulphuric acid, or that some genius should set up a machine on the border of the Sahara that received sand at one end and turned out sarked wheat at the other. What, then, would our hoarded gold be worth, or the wheat-larks of Australia, Canada or the Northwest?

The illustrations are fantastic. But the thing Rodman was after was a practical fact. He had it on the way. Giovanni and Lord Rayless Truxley were convinced that the man would work out the formulae. They tried, over their signatures, to prepare the world for it.

The whole of Asia was appalled. The rajahs of the native states in India prepared a memorial and sent it to the British government.

The thing came out after the mysterious, incredible tragedy. I should not have written that final sentence. I want you to think, just now, about the great bulk of a man that sat in his big chair beyond me at the window.

It was like Rodman to turn up with an outlandish human creature attending him hand and foot. How the thing came about reads like a live, it reads like the wildest tale that anybody ever put forward to explain a big yellow Oriental following one about.

But it was no lie. You could think up a lie to equal the actual things that happened to Rodman. Take the way he died!

The thing began in India. Rodman had gone there to consult with the Marchese Giovanni concerning some security theory that was involved in his formulas. Giovanni was digging up a buried temple on the northern border of the Punjab. One night, in the explorer's tent, near the excavations, this inscrutable creature walked in on Rodman. No one knew how he got into the tent or where he came from.

Giovanni told about it. The tent-flap simply opened, and the big Oriental appeared. He had something under his arm rolled up in a prayer-carpet. He gave no attention to Giovanni, but he saluted like a coolie to the little American.

"Master," he said, "you were hard to find. I have looked over the world for you."

And he squatted down on the dirty floor by Rodman's camp stool.

The two men spent the remainder of the night looking at the present that the creature brought Rodman in his prayer-carpet. They wanted to know where the Oriental got it, and that's how the story came out.

He was something, a creature seems our nearest English word to it—in the great Shan Monastery on the southeastern plateau of the Gobi. He was looking for Rodman because he had the light—there was another word that the two men could find no term in any modern language to translate; a little flame was the literal meaning.

The present was from the treasure-room of the monastery; the very rarest around it, Giovanni said, was worth twenty thousand lire. There was another thing that came out in the talk that Giovanni afterward recalled. Rodman was to accept the present and the man who brought it to him. The Oriental would protect him, in every way, in every direction, from things visible and invisible. He made quite a speech about it. But there was one thing from which he could not protect him.

The Oriental used a lot of his ancient words to explain, and he did not get it very clear. He seemed to mean that the creative forces of the spirit would not tolerate a diversion of power with the creative forces of the body—the cultivate notion in the monastic idea.

Giovanni thought Rodman did not understand it; he thought he himself understood it better. The monk was pleading Rodman to a high virtue, in the hope of which something awful was sure to happen.

Giovanni wrote a letter to the State Department when he learned what had happened to Rodman. The State Department turned it over to the court at the trial. I think it was one of the things that influenced the judge in his decision. Still, at the time, there seemed no other reasonable decision to make.

The testimony must have appeared incredible; it must have appeared fantastic. No man reading it could have come to any other conclusion about it. Yet it seemed impossible, at least, it seemed impossible for me to consider this great vital bulk of a man as a monk of one of the oldest religious orders in the world.

Every common, academic conception of such a monk he distinctly negated. He impressed me, instead, as possessing the ultimate qualities of clever diplomacy—the subtle ambassador of some new Oriental power, shrewd, suave, accomplished.

CINDERELLA'S ADVENTURES IN BEAUTY LAND

you apply powder before arranging your hair so that you come to the hair line with the powder.

After powdering, one may rouge the lips. The rouge should be applied carefully in the center of the upper and lower lips, and worked out to the edges, following the natural line of the lips and being careful not to go beyond and accentuate the size. Often one may seem to make the lips narrower and more delicate by careful rouging.

Apply the rouge with the tip of the little finger, rubbing up and down, not across with the lips in their natural position, not stretched taut.

Eyebrow Tinting.

If the eyebrows are thin, they may be improved by delicate tinting with an eyebrow pencil. Carefully brush the eyebrows to remove any suggestion of powder, and to give the glossy, well groomed look.

The fad of plucking the eyebrows is a reprehensible one since it destroys the character and gives an unnatural look, though there are exceptions to this rule.

A common mistake in making up is the overpowdering of the nose, which makes it too prominent, and the obvious makeup of the eye which gives an artificial and sometimes distorted appearance.

Remember this: a woman who is obviously made up always looks older than a woman who looks natural. If you use makeup, study your own type and accentuate your own points of beauty, don't try to follow someone else.

ALL THE CHARACTER IN HELEN'S FACE WAS LOST WHEN SHE FIRST MADE CLUMSY ATTEMPTS AT THE ART OF MAKEUP.

PROPER MAKEUP GAVE HELEN TROUBLE

By ELSIE WATERBURY MORRIS
(Famous New York Beauty Expert)

The first time Helen ever attempted makeup she looked very much as you see her in this picture—and like so many of the girls you see on the street.

She had lost all character by making her face a dead white with black spots of color on each cheek. She had blackened her already heavy and dark eyebrows and lashes until they were painfully artificial looking. There was powder in her lashes and black marks below her eyes that had become discolored from her eyelashes.

Her mouth was rouged to look twice its natural size with a lipstick that did not match the rouge she had used on her face. Her natural color was of her own face.

Makeup Ruined All

In these days, nearly every woman makes up more or less, but the clever ones do not compete with nature, they cooperate. Makeup will accentuate your good points or your bad ones according to the way you apply it.

I am decidedly opposed to an exaggerated makeup. If it is noticeable, it is wrongly applied.

In the first place, one must have a correct foundation. The face must be cleansed with a good cleansing cream, and if the skin is oily, followed with a mild astringent to remove all cleansing cream and superfluous oil before applying powder. A liquid powder is a good foundation for an oily skin.

Correct Powder.

Select a powder the correct shade to harmonize with your own skin. If you skin is colorless and you need color, apply it before you use your powder and apply it in the places where you naturally have color. Of course, color in the eyes may be made less noticeable by applying the "blue" and working it out to the temple.

Powder your neck and if you are to wear a sleeveless frock your arms as well as your face. Be sure that

JAMES COUZENS NAMED SENATOR

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Mayor James Couzens, of Detroit, appointed by Governor Groesbeck to succeed Truman H. Newberry in the United States Senate, said today that his past activities in office could be taken as a guide to what he would do in the future. Mayor Couzens came to New York today with Mrs. Couzens and his brother Frank, to spend Thanksgiving with the Mayor's daughter, seated on of the appointment reaching him this afternoon.

In accepting, he said, "I do so with a sense of the responsibility of the office and the world's history when at responsibilities rest upon the shoulders of the United States. In the Mayor's office of Detroit, I do so with deep affection for the city that has done so much for me and which has honored and trusted me. There are no more patriotic people on earth than Detroiters and if I can continue to serve them loyally and with the consent of the new mayor and street railway commissioners, I am still willing to do so."

There will always be problems confronting the fourth city of the United States and I will always be at their service in helping to solve them.

"It is too early to take a position on national affairs, as a careful and well thought out conclusion on each subject must be reached before declaring myself."

COMMUNISTS TAKE UP NEGRO ISSUE

MOSCOW, Nov. 29.—The negro question came before an open session of the Third International today. Pius Kolarov proposed that resolutions on the negro question be submitted for the purpose of clarifying the subject for European members unfamiliar with the problem in other countries. One negro delegate suggested that the communists support the negro movement everywhere with the proposal to call a Congress at Moscow of all negro revolutionary organizations of the world "to realize a united front of all workers against capitalism and imperialism." The speaker said the political rights of negroes in United States were more scraps of paper and for a long time capitalists had spread propaganda among the negroes in favor of white men. Until now he said, the workers have done nothing to counteract this. Claude McKay who, it was announced, is not a delegate, told the International that the negroes of the United States are denied the right of free assembly and are often lynched on purpose of the capitalists being to turn the mind of the worker to race war.

Powell Center Of Little Storm Over Gretna Job

(BY GEORGE H. MANNING)

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 29.—Ordinarily Virginia Democrats in Congress take little interest in routine patronage matters in time of legislative control. Distribution of public jobs goes on through the regular Republican channels and creates not a ripple. Now and then, however, stories reach Democratic ears and cause some slight stir.

A source of trouble always to the party in power is that of the multitudinous postmasterships of the lower grades. In each little neighborhood the office is eagerly coveted and rivalries of intense bitterness often grow. Then follow developments thick and fast. Trips to Washington. Telegrams. Long-distance calls.

Gretna, so small a place lots of Virginians never heard of it, right now is the inspiration of a redoubtable passage-at-arms, in which figure Representative Slempp, Joseph L. Crupper, Federal patronage referee, and B. R. Powell, a leading Republican whose advice formerly was sought in the Fifth district, participants.

Gretna, Pittsylvania county, in the Fifth district, is the modern name of Franklin Junction, on the line of the Southern Railway halfway between Lynchburg and Danville. Formerly it was a small village in Franklin county. It was a few stores village in those days, and it has not grown a great deal since.

Gretna is the home place of Mr. Powell. He fought for the appointment of one of several applicants for the postmasterhip, but another was named.

From the day—some weeks ago—until the present time Mr. Powell has been moving heaven and earth to undo the work that has been done in order to secure the appointment for himself. He has made trips to Washington. He has seen his own party leaders and still he has gotten no satisfaction.

Now he has taken a new task. Apparently despairing of winning over his Republican associates, he has discussed matters with some of the Democrats of the district. He has called on Representative Hooker once or twice and has indicated that things are not as they should be.

While Representative Hooker declines to be brought into the dispute, and will not discuss his conversations with Mr. Powell, it has gotten abroad that Powell has created the impression in Washington that the blame rests in Washington.

Whether there is a substantial basis for the reports is a matter not determined so far as the correspondents are concerned. They do not know frankly.

When the attention of responsible Republicans here were called to the matter it was doubted that any holding up had been directed or authorized from Washington. It was further said that one or more Republicans living in the Fifth district had been calling for funds from Republicans and candidates for office in such fashion that Washington veterans had felt it their duty to remonstrate.

And then you are

Mr. Powell was in Washington Monday and had a conference with Representative Slempp. Afterwards on the same day he had an engagement with Mr. Hooker and kept it. leaving at night for his home.

About a month ago, Mr. Powell gave out a statement to correspondents here that he might explode a "sensational bomb" in the event that certain things did not materialize. He hinted darkly, but was not specific. Presumably things did not materialize. Hence the developments of the last few days, which have aroused even Democratic curiosity.

By G. G. Marshall
 CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—Men wanted in large numbers are appearing outside manufacturing plants all over this district. A survey of thirty industrial groups shows that 23 made gains recently both in employment and payrolls. The payroll increase was accompanied by overtime and longer hours in nearly all the industries. Iron and steel plants in this district showed an average increase of 34 per cent in men and 82 per cent in payroll. Shoe manufacturers report a shortage of skilled workers and the tanning and furniture manufacturing industries are complaining because they cannot obtain the workmen they want.
 Good sized steel tonnages have been booked by the producers of this district and are independent as sold up to April 1.

Unwedded Mother Wins Home In U. S.

(Special to The Bee.)
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—A pretty British war mother—one of the hundreds of pitiful by-products of war-time emotional frenzy—today sees her trail of sorrow winding a curve into happiness.

She is Nancy Jordan, 23, English bookkeeper and stenographer. Nancy is assured she and her fatherless child, detained by Ellis Island immigration authorities, are going to enter the United States.

And she is assured now that both will be given a comfortable home or that she will be given a chance to work to make their livelihood, the one thing she seeks in America.

All this is because Mrs. Van Trump Warren, divorced wife of Frank G. Warren, Kansas City lawyer, is speeding to New York to put up the bond necessary to gain entrance for the mother and her child.

"I'll admit them," says Assistant Immigration Commissioner Landis. "If someone will put up $500 bond for each to protect us against their becoming public charges."

And thus an Ellis Island drama nears a happy end.

Miss Jordan's Story.
"In England I was a bookkeeper and stenographer. The war came. England was filled with soldiers. War-time hysteria was at its height. The lure of the uniform was felt by all girls.

"My baby was born as the result of a romance with an American soldier. I have no apology to offer.

"I met Frank Warren in England. He became interested in me and I started a correspondence with his wife who since has divorced him.

"I and my baby got along with the aid of my mother. When her funds gave out and jobs were difficult to get, I came to America. I wanted only a chance to work. I was going to Kansas City where I knew Mrs. Warren would aid me."

Warren's Story.
"My divorce which occurred in 1920 had nothing to do with Miss Jordan or her child," a Kansas City dispatch to The Bee quotes Frank G. Warren, attorney, as saying.

"Mrs. Warren and I now are the best of friends. I am glad to see Miss Jordan and her child admitted to the United States. I want them to have a home with Mrs. Warren.

"I cannot understand why the government should have considered barring Miss Jordan when such a woman as Mrs. Warren gives assurance of her care.

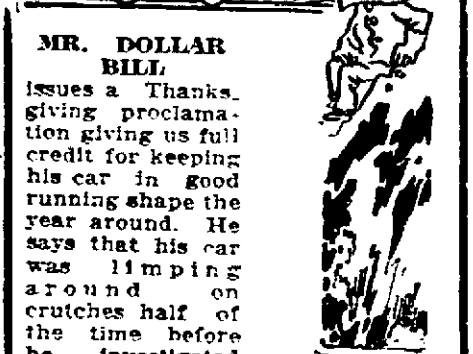

Miss Jordan has vigorously denied inferences that Warren is the father of her child.

SAYS CHARGES OF DRINKING AT GAME ARE "BUNK"

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—John T. Davis, prohibition director for Pennsylvania, today characterized the reports that liquor had been freely indulged in at the Army-Navy football game last Saturday as "pure bunk."

Mr. Davis, who voiced this opinion upon his return from Washington, said his visit to the capital was routine business and had not included a meeting with either the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy.

Mr. Davis declared his men who were at the game reported they had seen no liquor sold and had not even observed a single person taking a drink from a pocket flask. Concerning the Navy ball after the game, Mr. Davis said he had received no official information.

Business or Love in Man's Death

Business revenge or love? Police are working on both theories in investigating the death of Joseph Janus, millionaire auto dealer of Chicago, shown above. Janus was known to have bitter business enemies—but also he was noted for his popularity with women, and a woman's glove was found near his body.

VIGILANTES KILL "SLIM" SANDERS

CAMDEN, Ark., Nov. 29.—"Slim" Sanders, alleged owner of an undesirable establishment at Quachita City, in the Smackover oil field, was shot to death in an encounter with a committee of "vigilantes" who last night inaugurated a "clean up" campaign in the oil fields, according to advices received here today.

The report of Sanders' death was brought here by persons who left Quachita City shortly after the raid started.

No reports of casualties other than the killing of Sanders have been received here and it is believed few, if any, other persons were wounded.

It was stated, however, that a number of houses were burned. A number of men and women, forced to leave the fields, passed through Camden this afternoon.

According to reports received here Sanders, standing in the doorway of his establishment, shouted to the raiders:

"Come on, boys. I've only one life to live anyway." He drew a pistol. The vigilantes then opened fire, it was said, and Sanders' body was riddled with bullets.

CO-OPERATIVE COAL MINE STARTS IN WEST VA.

PHILLIPPI, W. Va., Nov. 29.—W. P. Beveridge has purchased a coal mine at Lillian and is arranging to operate it on a co-operative basis. He has chartered the concern as the Beveridge Co-operative Coal Company, of which he retains 50 per cent. of the stock, while the coal miners are to own the other half. The men are to work for $6 a day, and every three months the profits are to be divided on a 50-50 basis. The plant will be operated on a non-union basis, and none but stockholders will be employed. It has a capacity of 200 tons daily.
